

MATILDA WAY DRIVE ROUTE

CUNNAMULLA TO KARUMBA

Duration: 10 days / 1499 km

The Matilda Way is an iconic 1,812-kilometre touring route traversing Queensland's legendary Outback, stretching from Cunnamulla in the south to Karumba on the Gulf coast. Renowned as a premier Australian road-trip adventure, the route invites travellers to immerse themselves in authentic Outback experiences, rich heritage, and striking landscapes.

Starting in Cunnamulla, explore the Artesian Time Tunnel at the Cunnamulla Fella Centre, offering insights into life atop the Great Artesian Basin. Journey onwards to Charleville for stargazing at the Cosmos Centre. North of Charleville lies Augathella, 'Meat Ant Country,' with its striking sculpture and town stories at the Augathella Experience. In Tambo, Queensland's oldest western town, visit the Tambo Teddies workshop and walk the Coolibah trail.

In Blackall, explore the historic Blackall Woolscour, Australia's last steam-powered wool washing plant. Barcardine features the Tree of Knowledge, symbolising the birth of Australia's Labor movement. Nearby Ilfracombe showcases a quirky outdoor display along its Machinery Mile.

Longreach offers iconic attractions like the Qantas Founders Museum and the Australian Stockman's Hall of Fame. In Winton, discover ancient dinosaurs at the Australian Age of Dinosaurs Museum or enjoy the storytelling of the Waltzing Matilda Centre.

Continue north to Kynuna's Blue Heeler Hotel, a true Outback pub, and McKinlay's Walkabout Creek Hotel of Crocodile Dundee fame. In Cloncurry, visit the John Flynn Place Museum, honouring the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

Normanton is home to 'Krys the Savannah King,' a giant replica of the largest crocodile ever recorded in Australia. The journey finishes in Karumba, where travellers can savour Gulf sunsets, seafood, and top-tier fishing.

Throughout this unforgettable route, travellers experience dramatic landscapes, friendly locals, and adventures including bushwalking, birdwatching, and stargazing beneath endless skies. The Matilda Way encapsulates the true spirit of Outback Queensland, offering a road trip rich with history, nature, and character-filled towns.

Cunnamulla

Day: 1

Start: Cunnamulla End: Cunnamulla

Start your Matilda adventure in Cunnamulla, just 119 kilometres north of the NSW border. Just south of Cunnamulla check out the dwarf-like red sand dunes adorned with pines. If the winter rainfalls are sufficient, have the camera at the ready for a landscape ablaze with wildflowers. Cunnamulla is a community who invites you to come along and uncover all the hidden gems on offer. Be immersed in the local culture and history as you explore the heritage trail or visit one of the station stays in the region. Visit the Cunnamulla Fella Centres Artesian Time Tunnel and learn a little about the Great Artesian Basin, an underground water table that sustains life in some of Australia's harshest environments. If nature is your thing take a walk along the Warrego river walk, stroll around the Cunnamulla Bushlands or spend some time discovering some of the 207 bird species at 'Bowra Sanctuary'. A side trip west along the Bulloo Development Road to the quaint town of Eulo comes highly recommended and then continue North along the Opal Byway and discover Yowah, an opal mining town with plenty to offer.

Cunnamulla to Charleville

Day: 2

Start: Cunnamulla End: Charleville

A bit further up the Matilda Way is Wyandra, 97 kilometres to the north. The highway follows the route of the railway and it's the railway system that actually dictated where towns would be created. Wyandra, once a major water stop for steam engines that hauled wool and sheep to the marketplace. n100 clicks up the track and you'll get to Charleville. Now, Charleville is a town that is worth some serious attention, with a history featuring early cameleers, Cobb & Co and Qantas. It has one of Queensland's largest 'School of Distance Education' facilities and is a major base for the Royal Flying Doctor Service, servicing towns as far as Birdsville in the state's far south-west. Experience the Secrets of Charleville by booking on the Top Secret WWII Tour and discovering what 3500 USAAF personnel were doing here from 1942- 1946 or book into the Charleville Cosmos Centre and Observatory. Marvel at the amazing night sky like you have never seen before. You can also view the Sun through a special Hydrogen Alpha telescope. Astronomy by Day interactive area is very popular with children, including short films, meteorites and interactive displays all to do with the space around us.

Charleville to Blackall

Day: 3

Start: Charleville End: Blackall

Head north to Augathella or detour through to Quilpie and the Natural Sciences Loop. The Augathella pub is the central social hub and a good place to hear about the exploits of the infamous local bushrangers, the Keiffs. Home to Australia's Huckleberry Fi - Smiley? You can uncover this little known story while in town. Tambo is 119 kilometres further north and is home to the famous Tambo Teddies, established during the years of low wool prices but still going strong and producing teddies adored by children everywhere, pop in and watch these cuddly creations come to life. Grab a brochure from the Visitor Information Centre and follow the pathways around the oldest town in the west; many of the original buildings are still standing today. At the town's heritage precinct, friendly locals love to chat, while there try your hand at Morse Code messaging. A side trip recommended for four-wheel-drive enthusiasts loops out via the Wilderness Way to Salvator Rosa National Park. Or settle for a stroll along the banks of the Barcoo and do the Coolabah Walk. Just make sure you are back in time to experience Ben's Chicken Racing, running every evening at the Royal Carrangarra Hotel.

Blackall to Barcaldine

Day: 4

Start: Blackall End: Barcaldine

Blackall is 'home of the original black stump'. Heed not what other states claim, as locals descended from early identities such as Jackie Howe steadfastly stick to the belief that the stump located in Thistle St is the genuine article. In 1892 Jackie set a world record by shearing 321 sheep in seven hours and 40 minutes. He held that record for 58 years and when it was finally broken it was only by a shearer using machine shears, which were unheard of in Jackie's era. It's here that you will again greet the Barcoo River, which flows close to the town. Keep count of how many times you cross the Barcoo on this trip, as local legend has it that after the tenth crossing you're there to stay. A major attraction, the Historic Blackall Woolscour is living history and a direct physical link to Australia's pioneering era. Open all year, the massive steam engine is operated between May and September. Blackall was supposed to have the first artesian bore in the central west, only to be beaten to the punch by Barcaldine, just 109 kilometres further along the Matilda Way.

Barcaldine to Longreach

Day: 5

Start: Barcaldine End: Longreach

Barcaldine is an attractive town steeped in history and culture with plenty to see and do - an overnight stay is recommended. The best place to begin is the Visitor Information Centre in The Globe where the friendly staff will tell you all about the town. You can also visit the History Room and the Art Gallery which are located in the building. On Oak Street, the famous Tree of Knowledge celebrates Barcaldine's fighting spirit and co-operations to Australia's labour movement. The monument has a cathedral feel and is particularly beautiful at night when lit by special lighting. Packed with local history, the Australian Workers Heritage Centre is well worth a visit. If you're travelling between Barcaldine and Ilfracombe during August to September, spectacular wildflowers (in season) are a must see and the many species of birds will appeal to bird watchers. In Ilfracombe, old tractors, disused farm equipment and historic rural machinery have been neatly laid out, forming an open-air museum known as 'machinery mile'. Wander around town and visit the Wellshot hotel, take a dip in the artesian spa, the corrugated iron Langenbaker Cottage and Post Office, which claims to have been Australia's first motorised mail service.

Longreach to Winton

Day: 6

Start: Longreach End: Winton

The bustling town of Longreach came into prominence for visitors in 1988 when the Queen opened the Australian Stockman's Hall of Fame. This modern centre is world famous and warrants much more than just a casual glance. The entire history, adventure and essence of the Australian outback is rolled into one huge, diverse and informative display. Adding life to this western Queensland town are a number of other first-class attractions, namely the Qantas Founders Museum, with its own decommissioned Boeing 747 Jet as its centrepiece. The School of Distance Education offers tours of its facility, which provides an education to students within a 1000 kilometre or more radius via satellite internet. The Longreach Pastoral College, the Longreach Power House Museum and the Longreach Arts and Cultural Centre, in the old Ambulance Station, where locals display their arts and crafts, are also worth a visit. Various companies offer regular sunset cruises on the Thomson River, some in historic paddle steamers, with campfire meals and bush poetry thrown in. Hop aboard a Cobb and Co. coach for a tour of the town or head out to a real working sheep and cattle property to get a glimpse into life on the land.

Winton to Kynuna

Day: 7

Start: Winton End: Kynuna

The big skies and wide open spaces around Winton have excited and inspired visitors for years. Banjo Paterson wrote Waltzing Matilda in the neighbourhood back in 1895. The song was performed in public for the first time at Winton's historic North Gregory Hotel and now it is sung wherever Australians gather to celebrate. The new Waltzing Matilda Centre, dedicated to the memory of Waltzing Matilda, opened with a gala event in March, 2018. Winton is the Dinosaur Capital of Australia and hosts two major dinosaur attractions, the Australian Age of Dinosaurs and the Dinosaur Stampede at Lark Quarry Conservation Park. Both museums offer guided tours and a real dinosaur experience. Film-makers love the dramatic landscape close to Winton. So many feature films have been produced here the town now hosts a mid-year film festival at the historic open-air Royal Theatre. Qantas was born in Winton when the first general meeting of the airline was held at the Winton Club. Winton's Musical Fence inspired singer/songwriter Gotye to write the songs on his debut album that went on to win three Grammy Awards. Head on into Kynuna to a different kind of watering hole, the Blue Heeler Hotel. The pub is the only remaining building to have any association with the great Australian folk song, Waltzing Matilda. It is said that both the swagman and squatter had their last drinks at the hotel. Banjo Paterson also drank at the hotel. Come in for a cold beer and meet the locals!

Kynuna to Cloncurry

Day: 8

Start: Kynuna End: Cloncurry

Cloncurry is 348 kilometres on from Winton, but a side trip to discover the Combo Waterhole just south of Kynuna is well worth the trip. The waterhole Banjo Paterson drew inspiration from for the national folk song Waltzing Matilda. Walk the 2.5 kilometre return circuit to the billabong along the Diamantina River and have a picnic under the shade of a Coolibah tree. Hitting the road again, it is a short trip to McKinlay where you can test another watering hole, the Walkabout Creek Hotel, the pub made famous by Paul Hogan in his movie Crocodile Dundee. The pub, together with other buildings in the town were featured in this iconic Australian film. Another hours travelling will take you through undulating and open downs country to the town of Cloncurry..

Cloncurry to Normanton

Day: 9

Start: Cloncurry End: Normanton

Cloncurry is an interesting outback town and definitely deserves extended time for exploration. Mining has played a key role in the development and growth of the town and a bloke called Ernest Henry is responsible for its very existence. In 1867 he discovered copper and even today copper mining remains a major player in the growth of Cloncurry. A visit to John Fly Place Museum and Art Gallery will provide a history lesson or two. Commemorating Reverend John Fly who developed the Royal Flying Doctor service as a 'mantle of safety' back in 1928. Covering isolated regions the service is still as integral to the outback's survival today as it ever was. While there a must-stop is Cloncurry Unearthed, Visitor Information Centre and Museum. See the water bottle of explorer Robert O'Hara Bourke or learn more about Mary Kathleen (a former Uranium mining town) or wander through the museums' mineral and gem collection, which is ranked as one of the most comprehensive in Australia. Continuing on to Normanton, the vista changes and you'll see taller and taller termite mounds, which is a sure sign you've reached north-west Queensland.

Normanton to Karumba

Day: 10

Start: Normanton End: Karumba

It's a good stretch of road extending the 71 kilometres to Karumba, a town right on the Gulf of Carpentaria. Although it seems to take the longest of any previously travelled section of the highway, it's all to do with the excitement of finally reaching the 'end of the road' and the Gulf of Carpentaria. Its very location makes Karumba an excellent place to get a 'feed' of fresh seafood including excellent prawns, for which the town is noted. Visit one of the many vibrant bars at night and you're sure to run into somebody from the prawn trawling fleet. Speaking of bars, music buffs may know the Red Hot Chill Peppers' song 'Animal Bar', from the album Stadium Arcadium, which is written about Karumba and named after one of the town's bars. Around Karumba it's relatively flat country, but it's the birdlife that excites. Saurus cranes, similar to a brolga, are in abundance. If you're in Karumba in September or October, keep an eye out for the 'morning glory' a unique cloud formation that sometimes forms in the early morning.
